HOW TO SUPPORT A FRIEND OR RELATIVE WITH THEIR MENTAL HEALTH

CONTACT
Stay in regular contact. Pick up the phone, send a text or email to check up on your friend or relative

LISTEN
Listen to your friend or relative. Be patient and understanding

SUPPORT
Offer to go with them to find some extra support and advice from professionals

ENCOURAGE
Encourage them to talk about how they are feeling

COPING SKILLS
Help them to develop coping skills such as relaxation or deep breathing. Be there to practice with them

RESPECT
Respect their limits and do not put pressure on them to do things

DAILY TASKS
Ask them if there is anything you can do to help them with tasks such as shopping, cleaning etc.

WELLBEING
Talk to them about how exercise, sleep and eating healthy can help with their mental health

JUDGEMENT
Do not judge them or be critical when talking to them

YOURSELF
Make sure to look after yourself and your own wellbeing

The bottom half of the infographic features a stylized illustration of three people. On the left is a man with short brown hair, wearing a light blue t-shirt. In the center is a woman with short dark hair, wearing a yellow cardigan. On the right is a woman with shoulder-length brown hair, wearing a red dress with a white bow at the collar. They are all smiling and have their arms around each other's shoulders, symbolizing a supportive community.

Working from home

Supporting your mental health while working from home

My Whole Self aims to create a healthier working culture built on respect and collaboration. We're encouraging employers to create a culture where people can be themselves at work. Whether online or in person, bringing your whole self to work is a mindset that's better for mental wellbeing and better for business.

As more organisations move to online working, human connections are more important than ever. Here are some ways to support your mental health, reduce feelings of isolation, and feel connected with colleagues while working remotely.

Get set up

Waking up

Although you may have some extra time in bed without a commute, aim to wake up around the same time every day. This helps stabilise your internal clock and improve your sleep overall. You'll feel less tired, more refreshed, and find it easier to concentrate throughout the day.

Getting ready

Keep to your established morning routine if you can – get ready, washed, and dressed as if you are going to the office. This will help you get into the mindset that you are at work.

Setting up your workspace

Try to set aside a work area separate from your sleeping area, as this will help to prepare you for work mode and make it easier to switch off at the end of the day. You don't need a home office to do this – a small desk set up in a corner of your room, or a laptop at the end of the kitchen table can do the trick.

If you're working with a small space, you could try setting up temporary 'zones' by hanging blankets or screens to visually separate your work area from your bed or living area.

Clear your work surface of clutter and set up your equipment to avoid physical strain – do a self-check using the guidance at nhs.uk/live-well/healthy-body/how-to-sit-correctly.

If you don't have a chair with back support, you could add a firm pillow.

Get moving

Including some movement into your work from home routine will help maintain your physical and mental health. You'll feel more awake and alert, and your concentration and sleep will improve.

Outdoors

If you're not self-isolating, try going for a walk or a jog down the street before you start work for the day – this can help you to feel like you have mentally 'arrived' at work. Doing the same when you finish your working day can help you to leave your work mindset behind and switch off.

Indoors

If you're indoors, look online for an activity that suits you, such as a home yoga video or a fitness class. Some gyms are now live streaming their classes, so you could even join a fitness community in your local area.

No matter what exercise you choose, try to take regular screen breaks and stretch throughout the day. Try to take a clearly defined lunch break and move away from your workspace.

Get connected

Adapt your working style

Make sure you keep communication open with your team, as often and frequently as possible. Senior leaders should role model healthy working from home habits and behaviours. Here are some suggestions that we are trying:

- Video calls instead of emailing
- Short check-in and check-out calls between managers and their teams, at the start and end of the workday
- Optional Q&A sessions for colleagues to dial in and chat through any concerns or queries they have about working from home

Share your My Whole Selfie

Creating and sharing a My Whole Selfie is a fun way to show your authentic self to your colleagues. It can help you feel connected even if you're working remotely. Find out how at mhfaengland.org/my-whole-self/selfie-how-to.

Virtual social sessions

If you usually schedule time in the workday for an activity or exercising with your colleagues, continue to make time for this over webcam or phone. Here are some ideas that members of the MHFA England team enjoy:

My Whole Self

- Turning our morning or afternoon coffee break into a virtual coffee break
- Sharing photo updates of our lunchtime run
- Video calling for our afternoon craft session
- Daily online quiz session

Say hello

If you're working on the same document as another team member in the cloud, stop and say hello to each other.

Share your space

If you'd like to share your working space, why not give your colleagues a webcam tour? Or show off your pets at the end of a team catch up.

Get support

During times of stress it helps us to stay connected. Keep in touch with friends and family where you can. Use instant messenger to communicate with your colleagues if you are feeling out of the loop or need to talk to someone.

If you're feeling anxious or isolated, remember that support is out there.

Talk to your Mental Health First Aider

If your company has trained Mental Health First Aiders or Champions, make a note of their contact details, and don't hesitate to get in touch with them if you need to. They can use their skills to support anyone struggling with their mental health by signposting them to the appropriate support, both in and outside of the workplace.

Speak to your HR or EAP

If your organisation has this in place, talk to your HR or contact your Employee Assistance Programme.

Mental health helplines

Samaritans offers free, confidential support 24 hours a day on 116 123.
